Dear Dr Varakhedi Ji,

I received your letter of 12th October and the enclosed interview published in the Education Times supplement of the Times of India.

I went through your interview and found it enlightening. It is good to note that students knowing Sanskrit language are increasingly being hired by software companies, fashion design industry, food industry, entertainment industry and in many other upcoming industries and organizations. The renaissance of Sanskrit has already begun, and I have no doubt in my mind that Sanskrit will regain its past glory in the near future. Needless to say, the Kavikulaguru Kalidas Sanskrit University has to play an important role in promoting and popularizing Sanskrit among the people, especially students and the youth. You have all my best wishes in your endeavours.

Warm regards,

Yours sincerely

Sanskrit can help explore new dimensions

Jai Narayan Ram | Posted on Monday, October 05, 2020 15:10

Several fresh graduates are taking up jobs in IT working for digitization of ancient scriptures

Breaking away from the past, when Sanskrit students could only become scholars or take up jobs as teachers and researchers in schools and higher educational institutions, today, opportunities are opening up in several sectors.

Speaking to Education Times, Shrinivasa Varakhedi, vice chancellor, Kavikulaguru Kalidas Sanskrit University, Ramtek, Nagpur, says, “Things have been changing in the recent past where Sanskrit students are being hired by software companies, civil services, fashion design, food industry, entertainment industry in the creation of serials and movies on ancient Vedas. Sanskrit students are in demand in various art forms like music and dance; now even computational linguistics, astronomers and mathematicians are hiring Sanskrit experts. Many Sanskritists have joined in IITs, IISER, Google, Ayurvedic firms, yoga training centers.”

With the increase in demand for experts in the subject, opportunities are opening up in government as well as the private sector. “Jobs for students having basic knowledge of Sanskrit and Natural Language Processing are on the rise. The digitization of ancient scriptures is another area in which Sanskrit students are getting jobs. There are a lot of opportunities in Sanskrit-allied areas such as Yoga and Ayurveda,” says Anil Kumar Gourishetty, coordinator, Sanskrit Club, IIT Roorkee.

Currently, there are 18 Sanskrit universities including 3 central universities in India. Several private universities have introduced Sanskrit Studies. Keep in view its popularity, two universities in the US and one in Nepal is noticing a rise in students.

“25,000 students are pursuing higher education in Sanskrit, following traditional learning pattern in India. Besides, around 2 lakh students are enrolled in short-term courses. At present, more than 1 crore people are learning Sanskrit across the globe,” says Varkhedi. Sanskrit is a language of the future, he adds, which will trigger new dimensions for Science as well. Several recent scientific findings including God particle, Quantum Physics have roots in Sanskrit, as mentioned by several foreign researchers.

About Project - During the history extending over 5000 years, India has produced a large wealth of literature. This vast knowledge treasure was written on different kinds of material like birch bark, palm leaf, cloth, wood, stone and paper etc. India perhaps has one of the oldest and largest collections of manuscripts in the world. They are in the custody of different institutions like libraries, museums, monasteries, and individuals. Many of them have disappeared and a large number are in a state of damage/decay.

Modern research in Sanskrit requires the ability to read manuscripts, especially where text editing is concerned. Primers or guides to the scripts are not available in many libraries.

The Research Project "E-Handbook for South Indian Scripts" is an attempt to acquaint those scholars with reading manuscripts or inscription- material in various scripts. Grantha, Nandinagiri, Tigalari & Malayalam scripts have been studied and made available to research students and scholars through certificate courses through this innovating project. Developing the handbook of these scripts is just a first step for the study of Manuscripts which are available in these scripts.

Funding Agency – The Project is funded by Central Sanskrit University, New Delhi.

The project team –

Principal Investigator

- Prof. Shrinivasa Varakhedi,
Hon'ble VC, KKSU

Co-Principal Investigator

- > The way to explore ancient scripts knowledge through handbook is unique and matching to the needs of modern era
- > Script experts gets various employment opportunities of working under scholars, libraries and MRC
- > Learners can learn, test and get certified through online course.
- > The study of scripts is not just limited to script but gives idea of history, society, culture, ancient era, administration, rules and regulations through the literature available in that particular scripts. It is a source to know our heritage in different times of our Nation – India.

This project is the sincere efforts of rejuvenating manuscript treasure through the study of ancient scripts. We are enough lucky to have a privilege to study these ancient scripts - Grantha, Nandinagari, Tigalari & Malayalam through online mode. In this digital era, this online mode of teaching will attract language lovers to learn these scripts. UNIVERSITIES are there to impart education. But it is the only work that universities are expected to do? Can universities take responsibility of conserving heritage monuments, can they help authorities in rejuvenating the lakes, can they make people know history of their places. With these questions 'The Hitavada' approached two Vice-Chancellors of the universities who responded in a positive manner. In fact they have taken some initiatives in that regard.

Many universities are trying to do novel things in their own areas. Dr. Murlihar Chaudhkar, Vice-Chancellor of Sant Gadge Baba Amravati University has already submitted a plan for the conservation of heritage monument and lakes. He had submitted on removal with Higher and Technical

'The Hitavada' through its 'Footloose' column has given a call to the university bosses if they would come forward and take up this responsibility to which the Vice-Chancellors responded in a positive manner. Some of them are already doing it while others are planning to do. Dr. Chaudhkar said, "We have submitted a proposal for developing heritage museum for which we have asked for 15-acre land. On that land a museum would be set up which would tell the history of West Vidarbha. This part of Vidarbha has several things to conserve. We have birth-place of Sant Gadge Baba. We have Kaundinyapur, we have Gurusajj Muzri, we have Shergon, we have a temple which was built 500 years ago. Many people are not aware of it. We have had Zero mile, (Contd on page 2)

Interview of Hon'ble VC with Times of India (6.11.2020)

'Psychological and social issues bigger than tech glitches'

Sarfaraz Ahmed & Vaibhav Ganjapure

■ Were online exams on mobile phone successful?

Online exam was a collective decision of chancellor office, government and university. We were successful because we planned to ensure no student suffers. I asked the technical team to make such a software that even an Apple user or an ordinary phone user is able to appear. Our software worked even on 2G network in remote areas of Gadchiroli district.

■ Can online mode be adopted in normal times too?

Already, many national competitive and even NET-JRF are being held online. This is part of the system and inevitable.

held smoothly. I credit the students for this success.

■ Bright students complained th online format is unfair?

We have to study the complaints. Results are out and we can see if bright students are deprived of their merit. At Kavikulaguru Kalidas Sanskrit University (KKSU), as number of examinees was less, we made it a rule that if someone is crossing the usual topper's score, we will have a third check. But, we didn't need third evaluation.

■ Could there have been better assessment, evaluation and marking scheme for online exam

Definitely. But I didn't see anything wrong in it. It was an automated system. Even colleges might have given full mark in internal assessment.

■ There were very few student complaints from both KKSU and Gondwana University. How did you manage it?

Number of students in our universities were less. But if we were to serve one lakh students, we would have handled them. Initially, we at Gondwana University also faced same problems despite lots of preparation. I took quick and crucial decisions with the technical team. One was removing the agency.

■ Did quick decisions help?

Technical issue is one part of the problem. Social and psychological problems are huge. For social problems, I engaged with the teaching community and principals of all affiliated colleges. Then, I told all students leaders that their participation is important. I told them if we succeed everybody will look at us in admiration. Despite poor connectivity, they participated and exams were

Q & A
Shrinivasa Varakhedi

■ How can merit and toppers be decided in this format?

In KKSU and Gondwana University, previous performance was also considered. This format can't be considered accurate. Though someone else may get more marks, but can't cross the meritorious student's score. We have analysed the results and no problems were noticed.

■ Even students getting zero marks passed.

This is followed in entire state. Covid situation has made students uncomfortable. But they must get some relief.

■ What is take home message from Gondwana University?

The narrative was that online exams can't be held in this area (Gadchiroli). Today same students and teachers are happy. It has boosted their confidence.

(Shrinivasa Varakhedi is KKSU's vice-chancellor and holding charge of Gondwana University too)
